Each year as part of ENGR0012 and ENGR0716, the entire First-Year Engineering class at the University of Pittsburgh participates in a professional-style conference. Each student, with a partner, prepares a conference research paper and presents their paper to their peers, alumni, family and faculty. 2018 will be the eighteenth year of the conference, and the entire School of Engineering is looking forward to seeing the outstanding work of this year’s students.

The Swanson School of Engineering would like to invite all the parents to come and participate in the conference by viewing their student’s presentation. We suggest you contact your son/daughter and ask them for more information so you can read their work and schedule the time to sit in on their presentation.

This paper is the completion of a year long writing project. We highly encourage every mom and dad to come join their son/daughter on the day of the conference to see the transformation that their child has made in just one year under the direction of the First-Year Engineering Faculty and Staff. You are also encouraged to join all the faculty and students for a free lunch, provided by Heinz.

For information on the Saturday, April 7, 2018 conference schedule, and to view your son/daughters’ work just search for their name at this link:

engineering.pitt.edu/first-year-conference

Please help us plan for lunch. CLICK HERE to register with your name, and the number of people attending.

For more information or to register, contact the First-Year Engineering Department at 412-624-9825 or e-mail sssoefrsh@pitt.edu.